

ADP Canada Happiness@Work Index: Workers' Happiness Levels Remain Flat in February

Rising secondary indicator scores are insufficient to boost overall worker satisfaction in February.

TORONTO, Feb. 28, 2024 /CNW/ - The ADP Canada monthly Happiness@Work Index ("Index") finds workers' sentiments plateau in February, as workers' self-reported overall happiness remains unchanged despite secondary indicators going up.

The National Work Happiness Score for February 2024 is 6.7/10, remaining unchanged month-over-month from January.

"Despite an unchanged Work Happiness Score this month, February reshuffles the cards, with some regions climbing to the top three for the first time. Notably, Atlantic Canada is the happiest this month, with Alberta seeing the greatest increase in satisfaction levels and now tying with Québec," says Heather Haslam, Vice President of Marketing, ADP Canada. "The Winter may be difficult for some, with less socialization and time spent outside. Now may be a good time to consider in-person team activities, especially targeting the younger generations in the workplace, as we are noticing that Gen Z and Millennial workers have not shown any increase in happiness in a few months."

In February, the primary indicator of worker happiness also remained unchanged from January at 6.9/10, as forty-six per cent of workers in Canada feel satisfied with their current role and responsibilities. All secondary indicators show an increase this month, with almost all reaching their highest scores to date.

The Index also reports that Boomers experienced their highest score to date (7.7/10) and hold the top spot as the happiest generation of workers for the 14th consecutive month. Regionally, workers in Atlantic Canada are the happiest in the country, claiming the top spot from Québec, with notable increases in sentiment around work-life balance & flexibility (7.1/10). Ontario is the only region to see a decrease in happiness this month as they take last place.

About the Happiness@Work Index Methodology

The Happiness@Work Index is measured monthly through a survey fielded by Maru Public Opinion on behalf of ADP Canada and is undertaken by the sample and data collection experts at Maru/Blue. The survey is run in the first week of each reported month for consistency purposes and asks over 1,200 randomly selected employed Canadian adults (including both employees and self-employed individuals) who are Maru Voice Canada online panelists to rate workplace factors on a scale from 1 to 10. Discrepancies in or between totals when compared to the data tables are due to rounding.

The results are weighted by education, age, gender and region (and in Québec, language) to match the population, according to Census data. This is to ensure the sample is representative of the entire adult population of Canada. For comparison purposes, a probability sample of this size has an estimated margin of error (which measures sampling variability) of +/-2.8%, 19 times out of 20.

The Index will continue to be published on the last Wednesday of the month, with the next scheduled findings due for publication on Wednesday, March 27, 2024.
