ADP Canada Named Among Forbes' Canada's Best Employers for Company Culture 2026

TORONTO, August 4, 2026 – ADP Canada, a global leader in HR and payroll solutions, has been recognized by Forbes as one of Canada's Best Employers for Company Culture for 2026, making the second consecutive year the company has received this distinction. Forbes, in collaboration with Statista, surveyed more than 37,000 large organizations across Canada on aspects of company culture such as fairness, inclusivity, and opportunity, with ADP Canada leading the way for HR and payroll providers in the region.

The recognition reflects ADP Canada's continued commitment to creating an environment where associates and clients feel valued, supported and empowered. As AI reshapes the workplace, investing in people through upskilling and development opportunities and helping associates build the skills needed for the future of work have never been more important.

As part of a commitment to employers and workers across Canada, ADP Canada regularly measures worker sentiment through its monthly Happiness@Work Index, helping organizations better understand the workplace factors that influence engagement, career development and overall wellbeing. That perspective, combined with ADP Canada's deep workforce expertise, enables the company to provide Canadian clients with the data, insights and solutions they need to navigate workforce change and build resilient organizations.

"We're honoured to be recognized by Forbes as one of Canada's Best Employers for Company Culture for the second consecutive year," says Andrea Wynter, Vice President of People and Culture, ADP Canada. "A strong culture is built through the everyday experience of our people, and this award reflects our belief that when people feel valued, trusted, and empowered to grow is when they do their best work. As the world of work continues to evolve, our commitment remains the same: Creating an environment where every associate has the opportunity to thrive and contribute to our shared success."

This award is the latest in a growing list of workplace accolades for ADP Canada. In July, ADP Canada was recognized as a Canadian HR Reporter Readers' Choice award winner across six HR and payroll categories. In December, ADP Canada was named one of Greater Toronto's Top Employers for the sixth consecutive year, recognizing the company's longstanding commitment to employee wellbeing and career development.
